Voluntary, Confidential, Self-Identification for First Nations, Métis, and Inuit Students

The Ministry of Education has identified Aboriginal Education as a key priority. In its First Nation, Métis, and Inuit Education Policy Framework, the Ministry identified a particular focus on:

- High levels of student achievement
- A reduction in gaps in student achievement
- High levels of public confidence

In an effort to develop reliable data to measure progress in these areas, the Ministry of Education has encouraged school boards to develop policies for voluntary, confidential self-identification for First Nation, Métis, and Inuit students.

How will this information be used?

As per the First Nation, Métis, and Inuit Education Policy Framework, the data gathered will be used: to respond to the cultural and learning needs of First Nation, Métis, and Inuit students; to provide quality programs, services, and resources to create learning opportunities for all students, and First Nation, Métis, and Inuit students in particular; to build a curriculum that honours First Nation, Métis, and Inuit cultures, histories, and perspectives; and to facilitate greater participation of First Nation, Métis, and Inuit parents, students and communities.

Avon Maitland District School Board will use the data to plan programming to support student achievement by focusing on the literacy and numeracy skills of First Nation, Métis, and Inuit students and to offer supports and opportunities to students when appropriate.

The Ministry of Education will also use the information in an aggregate and anonymous way to plan policies and programs to support student achievement across the province, to report results, and to identify areas for improvement. Information gathered related to the province's standardized tests will also be provided to Ontario's Education Quality and Accountability Office. First Nations, Métis, and Inuit families and students should be assured that personally identifiable data will be protected by law.

How does a student self-identify?

Self-identification information can be provided voluntarily by parents, or by students who have reached the age of majority, using the Student Registration Form 302A at the time of enrolment; annually using the Student Contact Information Verification Form; or by contacting the principal of the school.

How will privacy be protected?

Information gathered will be protected in accordance with the Education Act, the Ontario Human Rights Code, and the Municipal Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. Please contact the school principal for further information on the First Nation, Métis, and Inuit self-identification policy.
